Some of turbine blades at the Port Mersey Commercial Park, which will be headed for the Mersey River Wind farm this week.

Wind turbine components begin trek to Mersey River Wind farm

By RICK CONRAD
Local Journalism Initiative Reporter
rickconradssb@gmail.com

LIVERPOOL – The equipment for a first-of-its-kind wind farm in Milton has begun to arrive at Port Mersey Commercial Park in Brooklyn and will start being delivered to the site this week.

Mitch Underhay, development manager with Roswall Development, told Region of Queens councillors at their Oct. 13 meeting that the components for about half of the Mersey River Wind farm's 33 turbines will start being delivered to the site the week of Oct. 19.

"Those large components over the next 10 or so weeks will begin their journey from the port to the site," Underhay told councillors.

Mersey River Wind is owned by Roswall Development and will operate as Renewall Energy. It's the first project under Nova Scotia's renewable-to-retail program, which allows green-energy producers to bypass Nova Scotia Power and sell electricity directly to customers. It will use the power monopoly's grid, but company officials are promising slightly lower and more stable rates.

The $500-million project is being built on 80 hectares of Crown land near the Mersey River. Vestas Canada is building the turbines for the project.

The federal government announced in February that the project secured a $206-million loan from the Canada Infrastructure Bank and could qualify for up to $122.5 million in clean energy investment tax credits.

The Mersey River site could provide electricity for up to 50,000 homes, and produce about five per cent of Nova Scotia's power once it's fully operational.

So far, about 30 commercial and industrial users have been among the early customers, signing long-term deals with the company. Those include the Region of Queens, White Point Beach Resort, Halifax Regional Municipality, Killam Apartment REIT and the Nova Scotia Liquor Corporation. "Thousands" of residential customers have also expressed interest, company officials say.

Queens County residents have watched large ships over the past couple of weeks lumber into Liverpool Bay laden with turbine blades and other components. Thirty of the 75-metre blades are now stacked at the port waiting to be delivered, along with other equipment.

Underhay said the company will send out an update along with a map to its newsletter subscribers, but he said he wanted to give the region a heads-up about how the equipment deliveries will affect traffic over the next two months.

RICK CONRAD PHOTOS

A ship carrying windmill components for the Mersey River Wind farm in Milton is seen off Beach Meadows pulling into Port Mersey Commercial Park.

He said they plan to do it during off-peak times to avoid school buses and other heavy traffic, from 5:30 a.m. to 6:30 a.m., 8:30 a.m. or 11:30 a.m., usually on Mondays and Tuesday or Thursday and Fridays. Their route will be from Port Mersey in Brooklyn, across to Wood Hauling Road near Brooklyn Power Corp., then along to Exit 18 to turn onto Highway 103 towards Liverpool. They'll use Exit 19 to turn onto Route 8, and continue to River Road in Milton.

"The biggest disruption of course is going to be on Route 8. The big component is basically a wide, slow-moving load that will traverse through Milton."

The company has a special move permit through Nova Scotia's Department of Public Works.

Workers have also trimmed back and widened the off-ramp at Exit 19 to accommodate the turning radius for the trucks.

Underhay said hunting will also be prohibited around the work site, while construction continues.

He said work on the turbine foundations will continue through the fall. Company president Dan Roscoe told the South Shore Bulletin in June that they hope to have the first windmills operational by the end of the year.

Region of Queens Mayor Scott Christian said anticipation is building.

"I know it is generating quite a bit of excitement throughout the community, seeing the components come into Port Mersey."

RCMP seeks information following armed robbery in Blockhouse

SOUTH SHORE BULLETIN STAFF

BLOCKHOUSE - Lunenburg District RCMP is investigating an armed robbery that occurred in Blockhouse and is seeking information from the public.

On Oct. 13, at approximately 8:30 p.m., RCMP officers responded to a report of a robbery at a business in the 500 block of Hwy. 325. Officers learned that a man entered the store, pointed a firearm at the clerk, who was the only person inside at the time, and demanded money.

The man then fled the scene as a passenger in a small white SUV that was last seen backing up School Rd.

The suspect is described as a man, approximately six feet tall. He was wearing a black coat with the hood up and a brown face covering.

The ongoing investigation is being supported by RCMP Forensic Identification Services.

Anyone with information about this incident, or who may have surveillance, dashcam, or other video footage from the area around the time of the robbery, is asked to contact Lunenburg District RCMP at 902-634-8674. To remain anonymous, contact Nova Scotia Crime Stoppers, toll-free, at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477), submit a secure web tip at www.crimestoppers.ns.ca, or use the P3 Tips app.

Bargaining continues between CUPE employees and province

By KEVIN MCBAIN
kevin.mcbain@southshorebulletin.ca

SOUTH SHORE – On Oct. 15, a letter was sent to staff and parents of students across the province, including those in the South Shore Regional Centre for Education (SSRCE), informing of possible upcoming strike action for the 5,500 employees that are members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

In the letter to parents, penned by Angela Gladwin, regional executive director of the SSRCE, states that the Regional Centres for Education and the Conseil Scolaire Acadien Provincial (CSAP) have been negotiating with CUPE for "the past several months".

Talks have stalled according to the letter with the conciliator working with the parties, declaring an impasse.

The letter further states that the Centres for Education are developing contingency plans in case of a strike – a 48-hour strike notice had not been received, as of the morning of Oct. 19.

Unless a deal can be reached, CUPE has signalled an intent to commence strike action Monday, Oct. 26, according to the letter.

Although, the strike would affect the centres for education differently, in the SSRCE, a strike would result in: Pre-primary to Grade 6 students continuing to attend school in-person as long as operationally feasible; grades 7 to 12 students currently receiving Tier 3 Learning Centre supports would continue to attend school in-person; all other students in grades 7 to 12 will shift to online learning.

There would also be no SSRCE-provided transportation to and from schools for the duration of the strike period and before and after school programs would continue as usual for students currently enrolled for as long as operationally feasible.

Students in the Tri-County Regional Centre for Education will follow under the same instructions moving forward in case of a strike.

Alan Linkletter, president of CUPE Nova Scotia, in an interview Oct. 16, said they were in bargaining "today, and it doesn't look good."

TO THE EDITOR

Too much time and money being spent

The Editor,

The warden and councillors of the Municipality of the District of Chester are spending an excessive amount of time and taxpayers' dollars dealing with two issues that the warden has clearly state are provincial responsibilities.

I urge the warden and councillors to politely, but firmly, tell the residents who continue to bring these issues to MODC that they should, and must, contact their MLA, Danielle Barkhouse for a solution to their issues.

Yours truly,
Raymond Cambria

Feeling defeated

The Editor,

I feel compelled to write this letter based on the events of the last few weeks between Elderfit and the LCLC.

Elderfit is a volunteer organization that has been offering water aerobics classes to those over 55 for the last 30 years. Since the building of the LCLC these classes have been held five times a week at the LCLC and have been well attended and much appreciated by the members. Members pay a fee for each class attended and from these revenues Elderfit pay a rental fee to the LCLC for the use of the pool.

These classes promote better health for seniors through a program of strength, balance and flexibility exercises. The classes and other outside activities also promote socializing opportunities for seniors and support for local organizations such as Souls Harbour.

Recently LCLC announced that they would need a rent increase of two and a half times the current rate and several other restrictions to the program.

Members of Elderfit met with LCLC management in good faith and offered several compromises, all of which were turned down by LCLC who announced an end to the program effective Oct. 30th. This came as a huge shock to members who are angered and saddened by the news. Most of our members live on pensions and many are living alone. This will mean a severe limiting of healthy activity for seniors.

At a time when our health system is so compromised, this program helped to promote many health benefits for seniors and is highly recommended by those in the medical profession.

I believe that this program is necessary and I ask your readers to lend their voices to our cause.

Sincerely,
Marilyn Scoville, Age 79 and proud Elderfit member of many years.

Thank you!

The Editor,

I had about nine of my chorus friends here, most of them long distance members - four of them from my former chorus in Ontario. We were at Osprey Nest for a wonderful seafood lunch, several ordering their famous lobster rolls.

When lunch was over and we asked for the cheque, we were told - IT WAS PAID!!! First the folks thought maybe I had paid it, but assured them that no, I had not.

Then the owner came to our table to tell us what had happened:

There had been a man and a woman sitting near us. I had noticed that when I looked in that direction he had been kind of watching us. I thought maybe he was alone because I didn't see him talking to anyone. But, when I pushed my chair back a bit, I could see that he was with a woman.

After they had left the building, here's what we learned: Yes! He had paid the bill for all nine of us. This was what his comment was - exactly word for word:

Owner of restaurant: A gentleman from Michigan left a riddle when he paid your bill and the riddle went like this; "I am just one American who wanted to do something nice for Canadians".

In this day and age when so many Canadians are not comfortable with our neighbours to the South, this kind of story should be known.

Harbour House opens Queens County location for abused women, children

By RICK CONRAD
Local Journalism Initiative Reporter
rickconradssb@gmail.com

RQM - A South Shore transition house has opened a location in Queens County to counsel women and their children experiencing domestic violence.

Harbour House, run by the South Shore Transition House Association, announced on Oct. 13 that it has opened a dedicated hub in the region to serve their Queens clients.

The shelter serves people in Lunenburg and Queens counties, but hasn't had a physical presence in Queens until now.

"Having a dedicated local home base, thanks to the extraordinary generosity of a donor, is a transformative milestone for our team and the community," Kelly Ann Hamshaw, executive director of Harbour House, said in a news release.

In an interview, Hamshaw said the local donor wants to remain anonymous, so she declined to disclose their name or how much they donated toward the cost of the five-year lease of the Queens location. She said it was "a historic donation".

The new space will offer one-on-one counselling and support for female-identifying people and their dependents.

It will be staffed by two full-time employees – a women's outreach worker and a child and youth service provider.

"Consistent relationships are the foundation of all that we do, so consistency in relationships, less travel time, although our outreach counsellors can travel to women's communities," Hamshaw says.

"A safe, secure, therapeutic counselling setting has been set up for women and children, not just from Queens, anybody who might be visiting Queens."

Shag Harbour celebrates 59th anniversary of UFO sighting

By WANDA ATKINSON,
For the South Shore Bulletin

SHAG HARBOUR - The Shag Harbour UFO Incident Society held an open house on Sunday, Oct. 4 to celebrate the 59th anniversary of the unexplained incident which took place in the community on the same date in 1967.

A panel of four speakers, three of whom were eye witnesses to the event, shared what they saw and heard that night. Even though time has passed, many memories remained vivid and occasionally brought emotions to the surface.

David Kendrick, Peter Goreham and Norman Smith spoke of the lights in the sky, an unexplained crash, the community's response and government agencies' presence, both Canadian and American. Also on the panel was Heather Doucette, sharing her personal experiences with extraterrestrial phenomena.

On the night of Oct. 4, 1967 strange lights were seen in the sky by several people in Shag Harbour and surrounding areas. The lights appeared to crash in the harbour near the former moss plant at the furthest end of the community.

Onlookers had gathered, along with the local RCMP. The crash site was surrounded by a yellow foam. Then the lights went out like the flick of a switch. Search and rescue operations began, raising more questions than answers. Eventually, what witnesses thought, was a possible plane crash was documented by the government as an unidentified flying object.

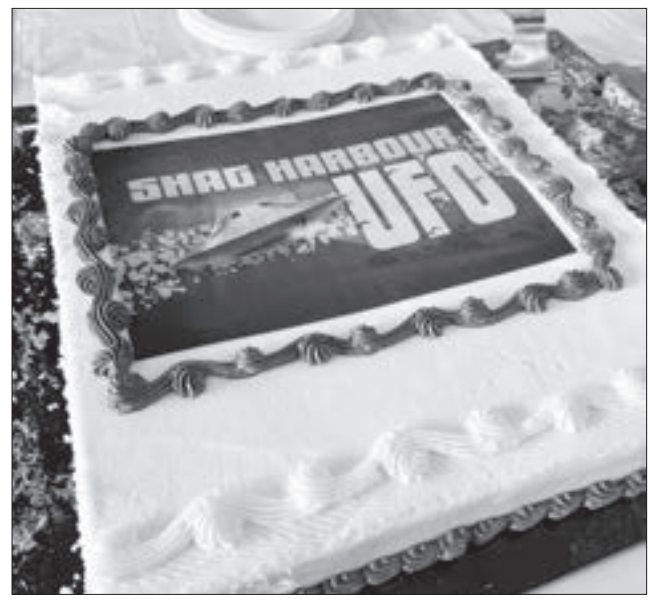

One of the key witnesses and president, Laurie Wickens, recently passed. The board elected a new president, Peter Goreham, and are continuing their work in preserving Canada's most famous unidentified anomalous phenomena mysteries.

The UFO Interpretive Center is located at 5615, Highway 3 Shag Harbour is now closed, but will reopen in June 2027.

Harbour House opens Queens County location for abused women, children

The location will not be publicly disclosed to protect Harbour House's clients, so that people can visit counsellors in a safe, confidential setting. They will still be able to have an outreach worker visit them.

People also don't have to leave their partners or require shelter to access the services.

Hamshaw said it's "a substantial increase in geographic presence."

"Geography should never limit access to essential support.

"Having warm, welcoming and confidential office space right here in Queens County, alongside a mobile team that can travel directly to community members, ensures individuals and families can receive support in whatever environment feels safest and most comfortable for them, whether or not they ever choose to leave their relationship or enter a shelter."

Harbour House has been trying to set up a physical location in Queens County for almost two years.

According to the Transition House Association of Nova Scotia, its member organizations supported about 4,500 women and children in abusive situations in 2024.

The Nova Scotia government declared intimate partner violence an epidemic in September 2024 and announced a four-year funding commitment in early 2025. Hamshaw says they're using some of that funding to hire the two full-time staff in Queens.

Here's how to access Harbour House's services in Queens County:

BFD band continues to stay busy

Fall concert set for Oct. 25

By FRANCES DAVIES

Marching bands are, of course, at the mercy of the weather. Nova Scotia summer is usually rather kind to us, with the biggest difficulties being humidity and the sun shining in our eyes. But from mid-October onwards, we will be preparing for chillier performances, not to mention rain, sleet, snow and ice.

The band has had a busy and fun summer and has performed at such varied events as the Lieutenant Governors' Garden party, Parrsboro Band Days and the Canada Day parade in New Germany, as well as the Canada Day celebrations in Bridgewater and three bandstand concerts.

The fall presents us with somewhat more solemn duties, including the Firefighters Memorial service and the Mutual Aid parade. Remembrance Day is our chance to acknowledge the debt we owe to Canadian service men and women, and the band will be at the cenotaph to assist with the service there.

We are also preparing for our fall concert, on Oct. 25, which will be presented jointly with 14 Wing Brass and Reed Band. It is such a pleasure and an honour to have the opportunity to present a concert with 14 Wing Band. This will be a feast of great contemporary music performed with skill and enjoyment. Our talented new music director, Captain Kerri Dorey, will be leading the band.

The Bridgewater Fire Department Band has the opportunity for some international collaboration in 2027, as we have been invited to spend a week with West Yorkshire Fire and Rescue Service Band, in the UK. This will provide great opportunities for fun and fellowship and for sharing and developing our musical skills, and we welcome the opportunity to represent Canada and Nova Scotia abroad.

Heading towards the festive season, the band will be taking part as usual in the Bridgewater Christmas parade – always such great fun, whatever the weather, and I hope that you will all come down to cheer us along. Finishing off the season , we will present a Christmas Concert Dec. 13 and we are preparing some lovely pieces for that. Watch for further details in November.

So we hope to see you all Oct. 25 at 2 p.m. at the Michelin Athletic and Social Club for our fall concert. For more details, check out: bfdband.com

JOIN US

The BFD Band has current openings in all sections of the concert band. If you play an instrument within the concert band family, please contact us. We want you to be part of our musical family.

South Shore Art Group meets

The October meeting of the South Shore Art Group was held in the United Church Hall, Mahone Bay, with the Director, Miss Pauline Veinot presiding. After a short business meeting, three interesting films were shown, filmed by Margaret Perry — "Nova Scotia Artists," "Bluenose Shore," and "Nova Scotia Churches."

The speaker for the evening was Mrs. Jean Edmonds-Hancock, a young Halifax artist who gave the audience a witty portrayal of the art scene today. She showed three of her paintings: one a traditional oil, the second an abstract using acrylics, and the third a textural design with fibreglass. Mrs. Hancock, a graduate of the Nova Scotia College of Art, has held several one-man shows and was appointed official artist for the Canada Games in Halifax. Her paintings hang in Government House.

Mrs. Hancock was introduced by Mrs. F. S. Harrison of Maders Cove and thanked by Mrs. H. A. Hewat of Lunenburg. Coffee and refreshments were served by the Mahone Bay members.

Chester seeks public feedback on possible voting district changes

By RICK CONRAD
Local Journalism Initiative Reporter
rickconradssb@gmail.com

CHESTER – The Municipality of the District of Chester wants residents' input as it studies whether to change the region's electoral boundaries and go to an elected mayor system.

Residents have until Nov. 6 to fill out an online survey at engagechester.ca/boundary-review.

Councillors voted in February to set aside $55,000 to hire consultants to review the seven municipal electoral districts, as they consider changing from a warden to a mayor system.

Of Nova Scotia's 49 municipalities, 16 have wardens, while the rest are led by mayors.

In a system of mayor and councillors, the public elects the mayor every four years during municipal elections. In Chester's current setup, all seven councillors are elected by the public. Then, the elected councillors elect a warden for a four-year term.

Wardens and mayors have many of the same duties and powers.

During their February meeting, one of the options presented to councillors was to add an eighth seat to council, which would be an elected mayor. They were also told they could keep seven seats, reducing the current electoral districts to six, with one mayor.

Some councillors were uncomfortable making that decision, so they opted for an outside firm to help.

Ontario-based firm Watson and Associates Economists is leading the review.

In addition to the survey, they're holding two online engagement sessions, on Oct. 20 at 2 p.m. and Oct. 21 at 7:30 p.m. Municipal officials say they'll be posting links to those sessions on the Engage Chester site, or people can email communications@chester.ca.

Once this initial round of public consultation is complete, the consultants will write an interim report with various options to be presented to council. The public will be consulted again before a final report is delivered to council.

Any electoral boundary changes have to be approved by Nova Scotia's Regulatory and Appeals Board before the 2028 municipal elections.

Bargaining continues between CUPE employees and province

He said that hopefully things will change this week as sessions are set for Oct. 19, 20 and Oct. 23.

"Friday will be the absolute final bargaining day for locals, so we're hoping between now and then we can reach some agreement," said Linkletter.

Negotiations have been ongoing for the past 10 months and Linkletter says the biggest impasse right now "I think is probably wages. What the government is offering is not satisfactory. We've countered a number of times with what we thought was more reasonable and it's been rejected."

He said the evidence of the shortages are pretty clear, especially in two of the positions - bus drivers and custodial staff.

"To counteract the lack of janitorial staff, they've increased the workload on the janitors...to try and counteract the difficulty getting employees. As a result, our schools aren't as clean as we'd like to see them, which is affecting the staff and kids at school," he said.

"We also don't have enough drivers, we're having difficulty hiring them, getting people even interested because their wages and benefit packages aren't satisfactory to new employees."

What happens now?

According to the letter, principals will begin reaching out to families early next week to explain school-specific contingency plans in the event of strike activity by CUPE, such as the distribution of technology for online learning and traffic plans.

Student Services will individually contact families of Tier 3 Learning Centre students to discuss arrangements for their students.

"We remain hopeful there will soon be a resolution and that these plans won't be necessary. CUPE has not yet provided the 48 hours' notice as required by the Trade Union Act," the letter stated.

"We value and respect our employees who are part of CUPE. We know their work is critically important to children, students, families, teachers and staff, and hope to reach a fair deal before any action that affects our classrooms."

Provincial funding announced for emergency service organizations during fire prevention week

By KEVIN MCBAIN

ITALY CROSS – More than $2.75 million has been made available by the province to strengthen 100 emergency response groups throughout the province.

The money is being funnelled through the Emergency Services Provider Fund with organizations able to receive up to $30,000 that will be used for the purchase of emergency response equipment.

Kim Masland, Minister of Emergency Management made the announcement at the Italy Cross, Middlewood and District Fire Department on Oct. 6. They were one of several fire departments and ground, search and rescue crews on the South Shore were able to take advantage of the funding to purchase bunker gear, gloves, flashhoods, boots, helmets, SCBAs, rescue tools and more.

"Every day across our province, people like you, answer the call when help is needed the most," she said in front of a small crowd that include several emergency responders.

"You respond to emergencies in all kinds of conditions. You search for missing people. You support communities in severe weather and you help families through some of the most difficult moments of their lives....Your commitment represents the very best of Nova Scotia."

The Emergency Services Provider Fund also offers regional funding for emergency response organizations and municipalities that work together on projects that strengthen emergency services across a broader geographic area and enhance regional preparedness, response and recovery efforts. Regional stream applications are open until October 31.

All things pumpkin

Annual Shelburne Pumpkin Regatta attracts thousands

By KEVIN MCBAIN and YASMIN DUALE
kevin.mcbain@southshorebulletin.ca

SHELBURNE – It was all about pumpkins at the fifth annual Nova Scotia Giant Pumpkin Festival (well, mostly) and Regatta that was held Oct. 8-9 along the historic shores of Shelburne.

The two days were filled with fun for all ages from pumpkin carving, tiny turnip carving, bouncy houses, music, road race, face painting, the Scott's Timber Show, shoot-a pumpkin/apple, weigh-ins, pumpkin derby, scarecrow decorating contest, Guild Hall Market, pumpkin try-it sessions and so much more.

Of course, the main event was the Nova Scotia Gian Pumpkin Regatta that featured 22 rowers placed in two categories – returning and amateur rowers. Many rowers submitted a short video telling judges why they wanted to be a part of the event and they came from all over. (P.S. Submissions are still on the Facebook page).

Keeping cats healthy

The importance of a healthy weight

ASHLEY KIPPERS
SHAID Tree Animal Shelter General Manager

Meet Celine and Susie, two young sisters who share a special bond and are looking for a peaceful home where they can begin their next chapter together.

If you share your home with a cat, you probably know how convincing they can be when they want a little extra food. That familiar meow by the food cupboard or the hopeful stare while you're eating can make it difficult to resist handing over another treat. But while spoiling our cats is part of the fun of having them, maintaining a healthy weight is one of the best ways we can support their long-term health and happiness.

Cats come in all shapes and sizes, so there is no single ideal weight for every feline. Age, body frame, muscle mass, and activity level all play a role. Rather than relying on the number on the scale alone, learning to recognize your cat's healthy body shape can help you notice when something changes.

A healthy cat's ribs should be easy to feel beneath a thin layer of fat without pressing firmly. Viewed from above, there should be a slight narrowing at the waist, and from the side, the abdomen should generally slope gently upward toward the hind legs. A loose flap of skin beneath the belly, known as the primordial pouch, is normal in many cats and does not necessarily mean they are overweight.

Changes in mobility can also be worth watching. If your cat becomes less playful, struggles to jump, or has difficulty grooming, excess weight could be a factor, but these changes can also signal pain or other health concerns. When in doubt, a veterinarian can assess your cat's body condition and help determine a healthy target weight.

Small changes can make a big difference, the easiest place to start is with your cat's food bowl. Measure meals instead of estimating portions,

Speaking of superpowers

SUSANNE BECK
Reality Check

At a home decor store recently, I found something that I thought would amuse my friend. The store features inspirational feel-good products, like signs that tell us to "Live, Laugh, Love." I chose an item with this message: "Worrying about things over which I have no control is my superpower."

Well, turns out that lots of people seem to have this superpower! Or at least, the message resonated with more folks than I'd expected. Not only is worrying a real thing, but so often it is indeed focused on things over which we have no control.

We can always find reasons for worry. And if you like to take action, solve problems, get things done, then you may already be handling the things over which you do have control. There's no need to worry and fret about them; you're dealing with them. The solutions may not be perfect or complete, but when you know what to do, there's less incentive to sit and fret. You just handle it.

But there so many places where we don't have control. Or we have limited control. Or we think we should have control, but we truly don't.

Those "no control" areas often involve other people. If someone we love is having trouble, making poor decisions, or making the same mistakes over and over, we might want to help, offer advice or money or other assistance.

Thus, we can fool ourselves into thinking we have control. However, reality tells us that it's the other person who chooses. They choose whether to accept our goodhearted offerings, and if they do, whether they will use them as intended. That doesn't always work out as we hope, does it?

Some of our out-of-control items are truly out of our control. They may involve illnesses or accidents. They may involve distances from loved ones that cannot be overcome in any practical way. They may involve lost friendships or missed opportunities that will never come again.

In addition, now that we have relatively easy access to information from so many sources, we may also expand our worrying to include global issues: war, peace, politicians who do everything wrong, environment, climate, society. Depending on the influences we choose to allow into our lives, we could be living with the perception that everything is rapidly headed downhill. It might even be in a handbasket, if you remember the old saying.

Perhaps you think your worrying is doing no harm. Maybe you believe it's even doing good, using the rationale that if no one worries, nothing will ever change! Personally, I doubt the effectiveness of worry as a problem-solving mechanism, but if you see it as working for you, then you have that choice.

However, here's a question that may be worth considering, "Does my worrying steal joy from my life?" And a follow-up: "If so, is that what I want?"

If you have this superpower of worrying about the uncontrollable and you're finding that it's not bringing much satisfaction to your life, then you might be interested in what Dr. Glasser, in his Choice Theory Chart, calls "Organized Behaviours."

These are the behaviours that we've used before. Even if they don't work all that well, we know them, we're comfortable with them, we can call on them and immediately they come!

For example, an organized behaviour for some people could be to let loose with an outburst of anger. It's right there, no thinking required. For others, withdrawing may be a behaviour ready to be used whenever things get tough. And then, there's worrying. Even when things are apparently going well, when you have a quiet moment, the worry behaviour can pop up. Things are too quiet. Should I be worried?

Next time, we'll revisit this superpower and see whether we can find effective ways to deal with it. In the meantime, tell me: do you worry over things you can't realistically control? How do you handle that? Let me know at choice@focusonclarity.com or by mail c/o South Shore Bulletin.

To your choices! ~ Susanne ~

Checking out the winter finch forecast

JAMES HIRTLE
Bird Notes

The predictions for winter finches forecast 2026-2027 has been released by Tyler Hoar.

Pine grosbeaks are expected to be few and far between. It is expected that there will be many purple finches this winter. As I mentioned in a previous column there is a good berry/seed crop in Mountain Ash, and both coniferous and deciduous trees. Birch seed crops seem quite good in the Maritimes, but due to global warming they are not expecting large numbers of common redpolls this winter.

Goodly numbers of red crossbills are expected. There should be a small to moderate push of white-winged crossbills. Northern white cedar, Eastern hemlock and eastern white pine seed crops are good this year. It is hard to read between the lines as to what they are saying about pine siskins, but I believe they should be plentiful from what they tell us.

Small to moderate flocks of evening grosbeaks will be found. They do not mention American goldfinches, but based on what I'm seeing for seeds on the trees and plants, I suspect it should be a good winter for them.

They do mention three passerines. The first is the blue jay where they are predicting above average numbers. The second species the red-breasted nuthatch is expected to remain here in good numbers. As for the bohemian waxwing, the north has good crops of American mountain ash berries. So do we, but due to the good crops in the north, we likely will not see many bohemian waxwings in the east this year.

The past week has been a slow one in regard to birds. The weather has not been great. The last reported ruby-throated hummingbird report that I had came from Bob Thexton, whose neighbour had one on Oct. 3.

On Oct. 7, with black-bellied plovers and greater yellowlegs, I had a short-billed dowitcher at Oxner's Beach. On Oct. 10 Ethan Sarty discovered a northern shoveler at the Liverpool Sewage Lagoons. I had 71 semi-palmated plovers, five black-bellied plovers, two dunlins, a greater yellowlegs and a ruddy turnstone at Crescent Beach (Lunenburg County).

Numbers of black-bellied plovers and dunlin counts have increased by a lot since then as have numbers of greater yellow-legs moving through. On Oct. 10 I saw a blackpoll warbler at Bell Island. Mark Dennis had both a pine warbler and Nashville warbler, black-billed cuckoo and a Baltimore oriole in his yard at Clam Point, Cape Sable Island. Logan Moore spotted a flight of 30 broad-winged hawks over Daniel's Head at Cape Sable Island.

On Oct. 12 Ted Warren found a white-crowned sparrow at Western Head. He also reported sizeable numbers of northern gannets flying by. Miguel Morales had a pectoral sandpiper and a red knot at Cherry Hill Beach. On Oct. 13 Miguel Morales discovered an American golden plover at Crescent Beach (Lunenburg County).

A black-capped chickadee found on Hell's Point Road in Kingsburg, Sept. 25.

There have been a lot of yellow-billed cuckoos showing up across the province. I have yet to get a report from one in Lunenburg County though, although I'm sure they must be there somewhere. Birds in the province, on the rare bird alert, were a black-throated gray warbler in Canso, a little gull at Port Hood (Inverness) and a black-bellied whistling duck in Truro. Cape Breton had reports of a brown boobie, a skua species, great shearwaters, an early Iceland gull, black-legged kittiwakes, razorbills, a cliff swallow, tree swallows, and a Eurasian wigeon.

Halifax municipality reported white-eyed vireos, blue grosbeak, Lincoln's sparrow, yellow-bellied sapsucker, house wren, clay-colored sparrows, white-crowned sparrow, Hudsonian godwit, Lapland longspurs, chipping sparrow, lark sparrow, dickcissel, leach's storm petrel and black-legged kittiwakes.

The northeast mainland had leach's storm petrels, black-throated green warbler, Prairie warbler, magnolia warbler, blue grosbeak, indigo bunting, dickcissel, black-billed cuckoo and numbers of yellow-billed cuckoos. The northwest mainland produced snow geese, greater white-fronted goose and dickcissel.

Southwest Nova Scotia for Yarmouth and Digby counties had lots of yellow-billed cuckoos, blue grosbeak, dickcissels, snowy egret, great egrets, indigo buntings, stilt sandpiper, vesper sparrows, Lincoln's sparrow, white-crowned sparrow, orange-crowned warblers, Philadelphia vireo, black-throated blue warbler and Cape May warbler.

The Valley area had yellow-billed cuckoos, yellow-throated warbler, American golden plovers, red knot, Hudsonian godwits, pectoral sandpipers, 200 plus red-winged blackbirds, 50 common grackles and another group of 250.

The night before the shift

STEPHANIE MILLER VINCENT
Business Moments

Ask anyone who's worked a service job and they'll know this feeling before you finish describing it. It's the night before. You check the schedule one more time, as if it might have changed. You notice who you're on with. Then there's that small drop in your stomach.

And the next day, you're in the parking lot. The engine's still running and Rush's "Tom Sawyer" is turned up a little too loud. You promise yourself you'll go in when the song ends. Neil Peart's drums buy you four-and-a-half minutes before you open the door.

There's a name for this: the Sunday scaries. I've read that fewer than half of Canadian workers feel safe talking to their leader about their mental health. In hospitality, a pan-Canadian study found two-in-three front-line workers keep their struggles to themselves. Which means the dread is there. You just won't hear about it.

Read that again. The dread is there. You just won't hear about it.

What struck me most was the study's conclusion: training individual workers wasn't enough. The lasting change came when leaders got involved. Workload, scheduling, the tone of the room, the person running the shift, not one of those is weather or the economy. Every one of them is something a business owner can shape.

In hospitality, tourism and retail, our "Sunday" moves around. It's the night before a double, or the drive in for a Saturday wedding. It's the moment the new schedule goes up on the corkboard. The dread doesn't keep to the calendar. It keeps to the experience your people expect to walk into.

That means it can change, starting this week. Here are three moves that cost nothing:

Post the schedule early, then keep it. Last-minute changes tell people their lives come second. A schedule they can count on tells them they matter.

Ask one question at the end of the week. "What's sitting on you for next week?" If two in three won't raise it on their own, you have to be the one who asks. Thirty seconds of listening takes the weight out of a lot of Sunday nights.

Make the first hour count. How the week opens sets its tone. Be there, be steady, and say good morning like you mean it.

None of this is complicated. It's attention. Your team is going to talk about their week ahead tonight, whether it's at the kitchen table, on the phone, or just in their own heads. So, it comes back to the question I've spent 30 years asking, and finally put between two covers:

What do they say when you walk away?

Ernest "Ross" Ramey

It is with deep sadness that the family of Ernest "Ross" Ramey, 91, of Hebbville, announces his passing on Monday, October 5, 2026, at South Shore Regional Hospital, Bridgewater. Born in Buckfield, he was a son of the late Elmer and Helen (Veinot) Ramey.

Ross began his career with the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1952, proudly serving as an Airframe Technician until his retirement in 1971 as a Master Corporal. He later worked with Irving Oil as a boiler service and installation technician, and LaHave Equipment as a heavy equipment mechanic. He eventually settled into his role as a supervisor of maintenance with the Department of Public Works, Canada at the Lunenburg office, where he retired.

Outside of work, Ross and Ginny loved traveling to Bluegrass festivals, where Ross showcased his musical talent on nearly every string instrument—with the banjo being a personal favorite. A true jack-of-all-trades, Ross could fix or build almost anything, and he was always the first to lend a helping hand. Above all, he was a soft-hearted, gentle man who genuinely loved people.

Ross is survived by his loving wife, Virginia; son, David (Faye) Ramey of Conquerall Bank; daughter, Linda (Glen) Slauenwhite of Italy Cross; proud grandchildren, Chris, Natasha, Morgan, and Jade; great-grandchildren, Caelyn, Hayden, Keegan, Carter, Beaux, Duke, and Asher; brother, Walter (Judy) Ramey of Hebbville; as well as several nieces and nephews.

Besides his parents, he was predeceased by his children, Jeanette, Darrell, and Ronald Ramey; daughter Rose Hubley; and daughter-in-law, Tammy Hirtle.

A Celebration of Ross's Life was held on Saturday, October 17, 2026, from 1-5 p.m. at the Newcombville Fire Department, with Rev. Willis Ott officiating. Arrangements were entrusted to Personal Care Cremations & Memorial Services.

In memory of Ross, donations to a charity of your choice would be deeply appreciated by the family.

Keeping cats healthy

follow feeding guidance tailored to your cat, and keep treats to no more than about 10 per cent of daily calories. If your cat begs between meals, try a short play session or a puzzle feeder rather than automatically offering more food.

Daily play is another important part of a healthy routine. Wand toys, toy mice, climbing trees, and food puzzles encourage movement while providing mental stimulation. Regularly checking your cat's weight and body shape can help you spot gradual changes, too.

If your cat needs to lose weight, speak with your veterinarian before making significant changes. Weight loss should be gradual and carefully managed, as severe food restriction can be dangerous for cats.

Keeping a cat healthy isn't about making them look a certain way. It's about helping them stay comfortable, active, and able to enjoy all the little things cats love, whether that's chasing a toy, exploring a sunny window, or curling up beside their favourite person.

Meet Celine and Susie: Two sisters looking for one loving home

At SHAID Animal Shelter, we know that finding the right home can make all the difference. This week, we'd like to introduce Celine and Susie, two young sisters who share a special bond and are looking for a peaceful home where they can begin their next chapter together.

These lovely girls are searching for a patient, understanding family who will give them time to settle into their new surroundings and feel safe at their own pace. A calm home without young children or dogs would be the ideal setting for them to enjoy the comforts of family life.

Celine and Susie must be adopted together, and their future family will have the joy of welcoming a bonded pair who can offer companionship to one another as they adjust to their new home. They're dreaming of cozy naps, gentle routines, and a safe place where they can blossom side by side. If you have a peaceful home with room in your heart for two sisters who belong together, Celine and Susie may be the perfect pair for you.

Finding the right match for every animal takes time, care, and community support. Whether you adopt, foster, volunteer, donate, or support SHAID's fundraising efforts, you help provide the care and second chances that animals waiting for their families deserve.

All things pumpkin

There were entries from many areas including Saskatchewan, Arizona, Massachusetts, Ontario and from across the Maritimes.

This year Gonzuela, a first-time competitor from New Brunswick, came to take part in the event. Her pumpkin was particularly noticeable: it was painted as an anime figure, which gave the oversized orange vessel a striking appearance. However, despite the elaborate decoration, Gonzuele's hopes were modest. "My only hope is that I don't sink," she said.

This is the sentiment of Ontario mom and daughter Kate and Chris Latimer, who hopped into the water, hoping their pumpkin would stay upright. "I just hope we stay upright," said Kate Latimer. The wind was blowing hard in the water. It was not easy to maintain the balance of these gigantic pumpkins, let alone race them to the finish line. A clear sky lit up the ripples, but the breezy conditions brought an unpredictable element to the contest.

Thousands of people lined the banks to watch the excitement, battling through some ferocious windy conditions, Kate from Aurora, Ont. Had finished first in the Amateur race; followed by Mike from AC Belliveau and in third, Joey from Halifax.

In the returning rower division, Parker Neily, bested his defending champion father, Will and Hope from Bedford finished in third.

Weigh-in results: Pumpkin – 1. Craig, 1,510 lbs; 2. Frank, 653 lbs; and 3. Francis, 640 lbs. Field Pumpkin – 1. Ted, 138 lbs.; 2. Maddy and Aleah, 31lbs.; 3. Brittany, 17 lbs.; Bob Sinden first time grower award – 1. Ted, 604 lbs.; 2. Landon, 350 lbs.; 3. Derek, 311 lbs. Sunflowers – Margaret, 181 inches; 2. John, 168 inches; 3. Zane, 135.5 inches.

Last but not least, winner of the scarecrow decorating contest was the Shelburne Barrel Factory. With the win, they were given $250 to re-direct to a charity of their choice and they selected the Shelburne County Youth Health and Support Association and Our House.

Salty Shores is a must stop location in Barrington Passage

WANDA ATKINSON
Roaming Appetite

Salty Shores Inn & Cafe has everything you could ask for in a coffee shop - good vibes, great food and amazing coffee! The history and charm help, but it is the freshly made goods that seal the deal.

The Barrington Passage cafe, at the corner of Main Street and Station Road, is located in the historic Robertson Building. The brick building served as the town's bank for many decades. Unique architecture and an impeccably decorated interior now provide a relaxed atmosphere to grab a cup of java, meet with friends, or enjoy lunch.

When the cafe opens on weekday mornings, it's not only the smell of freshly brewed coffee that is enticing, the delightful aroma of homemade soups and desserts waffle in the air too.

The menu features three freshly made classic soups with different options each day. Some of the favourites are chicken and wild rice, loaded baked potato, tuscan, vegetable medley and roasted red pepper. Full bowls of soup are served with a delicious, tender and flaky homemade biscuit.

Soup can be paired with an artisan panini sandwich. The fresh bread and unique filling combinations layer flavour, taste, texture and sometimes a bit of crunch. The ABCD panini consists of apple, bacon, cheddar and dijon and packs a filling punch. A popular lunch time order is pulled pork with a dill pickle. If you try it, you will understand why.

The baker's display case, always a sweet treat to gaze upon, is filled with an ever-changing myriad of delicious, sweet treats including sweet and savoury scones, giant sized muffins, often with seasonal fruit, large cookies and more.

Drinks are a specialty with Salty Shores branded coffee a cornerstone. On the hot side there's coffee, expresso, americano, cappuccino mocha, tea or chai latte. For something cool and refreshing check out the lemonade, shakes, frozen hot chocolate, iced teas and iced coffees.

Seating is meant to suit the occasion and mood. There's tall cafe style tables, great for one or two people. Meet with family, friends or coworkers at a larger table. A sought-after spot is the sofa and accent chairs situated in front of the original fireplace.

While at the cafe, keep your ears open. You might even overhear a story entailing the location's former days when the train station and ferry terminal were located behind the building, at the end of Station Road.

The train would come through town in the early morning hours, before the bank opened. On money delivery days, a bag filled with cash was left on the back steps of the bank. A few hours later the manager would come by to retrieve the bag, unlock the door, open the bank and place the money in the vault. The bank vault is now the walk-in cooler and in all those years the money left on the back steps never went missing.

The cafe is open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on weekdays only. If you want to stay a bit longer the Salty Shore Inn, consisting of two well-appointed rooms, is located on the second floor.
